كتاب الأم — الإمام أبو عبد الله محمد بن إدريس بن العباس بن عثمان بن شافع القرشي الشافعي (ت ٢٠٤ هـ)

Transmitted directly through his Egyptian student al-Rabīʿ ibn Sulaymān ('أَخْبَرَنَا الرَّبِيعُ بْنُ سُلَيْمَانَ قَالَ أَخْبَرَنَا الشَّافِعِيُّ'). | Derives legal rulings directly from the apparent and clear Arabic address of the Qur'an ('...فَكَانَ بَيِّنًا عِنْدَ مَنْ خُوطِبَ بِالْآيَةِ...' 'وَظَاهِرُ الْقُرْآنِ يَدُلُّ عَلَى...').

In the Name of Allah, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful — The Book of Ritual Purity (Kitāb al-Ṭahārah): Al-Rabīʿ ibn Sulaymān informed us, saying: Al-Shāfiʿī (may Allah the Exalted have mercy on him) informed us, saying: Allah (Blessed and Exalted is He) declared: When you rise to [perform] prayer, wash your faces and your forearms to the elbows and wipe over your heads and wash your feet [to the ankles] [al-Māʾidah: 6]. (Al-Shāfiʿī said): Thus it was self-evident to those addressed by the verse (man khūṭiba bi-l-āyah) that their washing was only with water; and He further made clear in this verse that major ritual washing (al-ghusl) is with water. And it was understood by those addressed by the verse that 'water' (al-māʾ) refers to whatever water Allah (Mighty and Majestic is He) created in which human beings have no manufacturing artifice (mimmā lā ṣanʿata fīhi li-l-ādamiyyīn). And since the mention of water is general (ʿāmman), rain water, river water, well water, spring/cistern water, and sea water—both the sweet/fresh (al-ʿadhb) and the salty/brackish (al-ujāj) among all of them—are equal in that it purifies whoever performs ablution (wuḍūʾ) or ritual bath (ghusl) therewith. And the apparent meaning of the Qur'an (ẓāhir al-Qurʾān) indicates that every natural water is pure and purifying—whether sea water or otherwise. (Al-Shāfiʿī said): Mālik informed us, from Ṣafwān ibn Sulaym, from Saʿīd ibn Salamah—a man from the family of Ibn al-Azraq—that al-Mughīrah ibn Abī Burdah (who is from Banū ʿAbd al-Dār) informed him that he heard Abū Hurayrah (may Allah be pleased with him) say: 'A man asked the Prophet ﷺ, saying: O Messenger of Allah, we sail upon the sea and carry only a little fresh water with us; if we perform ablution with it, we will suffer thirst. Shall we then perform ablution with sea water? The Prophet ﷺ replied: «Its water is purifying (huwa al-ṭahūru māʾuhu), and its dead [sea-creatures] are lawful to eat (al-ḥillu maytatuhu).»' (Al-Shāfiʿī said): Thus all water is purifying so long as no ritual impurity (najāsah) mixes with and alters it; and whether it is water from hail or melted snow, or heated water or unheated water, all of it is equal—because water retains its purity when heated by fire, and fire does not render water impure.
