بدائع الصنائع في ترتيب الشرائع — الإمام علاء الدين أبو بكر بن مسعود بن أحمد الكاساني الحنفي (ت ٥٨٧ هـ)

Renowned for unmatched structural arrangement ('التَّرْتِيبُ الَّذِي تَقْتَضِيهِ الصِّنَاعَةُ وَتُوجِبُهُ الْحِكْمَةُ' — the systematic order demanded by juristic craft and wisdom). | Dedicates his work to expounding the methodology of his teacher ʿAlāʾ al-Dīn al-Samarqandī (author of Tuḥfat al-Fuqahāʾ), grounding every branch of law in rational and scriptural proof.

[Author's Opening Discourse (Khuṭbat al-Kitāb li-l-Muṣannif)] — In the Name of Allah, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful: All praise belongs to Allah, the Most High, the All-Powerful, the All-Strong, the Subduer, the Most Merciful, the Oft-Forgiving, the Most Generous, the Concealer [of faults], Possessor of Manifest Sovereignty and Resplendent Proof (al-Burhān al-Bāhir), Creator of every thing and Sovereign Owner of every dead and living being; He created and perfected in excellence, fashioned with consummate precision, had full power yet forgave, saw all yet concealed, showed generosity and pardoned, and decreed with hidden wisdom; His bounty and beneficence encompass all, His proof and demonstration are complete, and His command and sovereignty are manifest—so glorified is He, how supreme is His station! And may blessings and peace be upon the one sent as a bearer of glad tidings, a warner, a caller unto Allah by His permission, and a radiant lamp—who made clear the guidance, dispelled ignorance, blunted foolishness, and demolished specious doubts: Muḥammad, the Master of the Messengers and Imām of the God-conscious, and upon his righteous family and his chosen, noble Companions. (To proceed): Indeed, after the knowledge of Allah and His attributes, there is no knowledge nobler than the science of Jurisprudence (ʿIlm al-Fiqh)—which is known as the science of the Lawful and the Unlawful (al-Ḥalāl wa-l-Ḥarām) and the science of revealed laws and rulings. For its sake Allah sent the Messengers and revealed the Books, since there is no way to know it through pure unaided intellect without the assistance of revealed audition (al-samʿ). And Allah the Exalted said: He grants wisdom to whom He wills, and whoever is granted wisdom has certainly been given much good; and none will remember except those of understanding [al-Baqarah: 269]; and it has been said in some aspects of exegesis that 'wisdom' here is the science of Fiqh. And it is narrated from the Messenger of Allah ﷺ that he said: 'Allah has not been worshipped with anything more excellent than deep understanding (fiqh) in religion; and a single jurist (faqīh) is more formidable against Satan than a thousand worshippers.' And the works compiled by our masters in this discipline, ancient and modern, have multiplied—and all of them benefited and excelled—except that none of them directed their care toward systematic arrangement (al-tartīb) in that, save my teacher, the heir of the Sunnah, the ascetic Shaykh and Imām ʿAlāʾ al-Dīn, chief of Ahl al-Sunnah, Muḥammad ibn Aḥmad ibn Abī Aḥmad al-Samarqandī (may Allah the Exalted have mercy on him); so I followed his example and was guided thereby, since the primary purpose and universal objective of compilation in every branch of knowledge is to facilitate the path of reaching the sought-after ruling for students and to bring it near to the minds of seekers—and this objective is only achieved through a systematic arrangement demanded by the juristic craft and necessitated by wisdom.
